

Mme. C. J. Walker's Household Goods Not Sold for Mortgage

Mr. F. B. Ransom, attorney and manager of the firm, C. J. Walker Manufacturing Company, writes The Negro World to correct the interpretation made in the white press to the effect that the furnishings of the villa, Leavenworth, "sat up for mortgage." He also informs us that his company does not manufacture anything to take the "knake" out.

The villa, furnishings of villa Leavenworth, the 24-room mansion of the late Mme. C. J. Walker, were not sold to satisfy not to pay money to pay a mortgage of $15,000," stated Attorney F. B. Ransom.

The company which had the villa broken up, the villa was prepared in the name of the same for the same reason that Mme. A. L. Walker or never occupied and does not intend to occupy the villa.

The building which stood for 12 years without an occupant and the furnishings were depreciating in value. He will, however, satisfy its purpose as a means to take the last step in A. L. Walker's reasons for not occupying the home are purely personal.

"The upkeep of the house was just as costly without but using it as an office and we kept a full house there since we kept a full staff, salaries, purchased food, etc.

Attorney Ransom added.

Thankful Negro Dines

1,500 Dollars by Wife

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Charles

W. H. Bowman, a successful Negro of Fall River, Mass., played host to 1,500 unemployed men for Thanksgiving Day, when he telephoned 1,500 to Thomas A. Frazee, president of the Manpower Service, that an unemployed man could buy a bus ticket to San Francisco, and that Negroes were barred from many restaurants, just as in India the most of caste refuse to eat with the unemployed.

"It is said that memories of a Thanksgiving dinner given in Sacramento twenty years ago, when he was hungry, cold and without a dime in his pocket, caused Mr. Bowman to order a read dinner for the unemployed of this city.

The committee decided to invite the millionaire philanthropist or representative of the fund to speak at the annual meeting of the Manpower Service, but he was unable to find time to speak.

Mr. Bowman worked in West End cafeterias and prepared free lunches.

Later he operated a barbershop, obtaining enough money to begin a taxicab service, the first in the city.

The action of the members of the state legislature has brought condemnation from the Negroes in this city. A campaign to defeat those at the next election is being planned by both Negroes and whites.
